Seventeenth Annual Seminar

Media and the Law 2003

April 25, 2003 • Kansas City Marriott Downtown, Kansas City, Missouri

REGISTRATION NOW!

“I have been trying for several years to make this seminar. I will not miss it from here on out. Excellent, engaging, and informative discussions on key issues of the day by entertaining and knowledgeable speakers with front-line experience. What else can you ask for?”

Deborah Patterson, Louisville, Kentucky

“I have been attending the seminar for about seven years. I always come away with many valuable insights that are of great practical help in my practice representing media.”

Eno T. Lawson, Boston, Massachusetts

“I get excited about practicing First Amendment cases when I attend this seminar. Last year Lee Levine and James Ellroy were fabulous.”

Brent Hannafin, New York, New York

“The seminar is well organized, and I always come away with practical ideas.”

Robb Harvey, Nashville, Tennessee

The media maintain a critical role during times of national crisis, bringing to the fore issues concerning access, privacy, and the public’s right to know. Nonetheless, traditional subjects such as newsgathering, defamation, and privacy continue to be of the utmost importance to day-to-day media activities and areas of significant new developments.

This seminar will bring media law experts together to discuss legal, practical, and ethical nuts-and-bolts issues that remain paramount as we focus on recent developments.

The program on Friday, April 25, will focus on substantive content, procedural issues, and practical concerns in the following areas:

• Prepublication review
• Reporters’ privilege and fringe media
• Mediation strategies
• Political speech and criminal libel
• Ethical dilemmas for media lawyers

Location & Fees
The Media and the Law Seminar will be presented on Friday, April 25, at the Kansas City Marriott Downtown, 200 West 12th Street, Kansas City, Missouri. The registration fee includes panel instruction, materials, luncheon, and refreshments.
