E-RESERVES: STUDYING HAS NEVER BEEN THIS CONVENIENT

Have you ever settled in for a long night of studying at home only to realize that you forgot to make a copy of the practice exam your professor left on reserve at the library? If so, you will be especially appreciative of the library’s new “E-Reserve” system.

Most reserve items are now only a mouse-click away because they have been digitized and made available through the KU Libraries online catalog. Although a few items remain available only in hard-copy form at the Circulation Desk, the vast majority of reserve materials are now available electronically through the E-Reserve system.

Feel free to ask a librarian for a quick demonstration of the E-Reserve system, or get online and try it out for yourself. It is quick, convenient, and easy if you follow the procedures listed below.

HOW TO ACCESS E-RESERVES:

1) Go to the KU libraries home page at http://www.lib.ku.edu

2) Click on “Library Catalog”

3) Click on the “Course Reserve” tab

4) Select “Law” under the department pull-down

5) Narrow your search by instructor or course if necessary

6) Select your document!

The E-Reserve system is the latest development in the library’s ongoing mission to improve accessibility and convenience for our patrons. We try to be “user-centered” in our approach and welcome any input you may have regarding how we can better meet the needs of the KU Law students and faculty that make up our core constituency!

M.L.I.M. Program Touts Success Stories

Sarah Shik (L’05) recently demonstrated the viability of the Master’s in Legal Information Management program offered jointly through KU Law and Emporia State University’s School of Library and Information Management. Sarah, who will complete her MLIM degree this semester, attended the annual AALL meeting (see story on page 2) with the goal of landing a job with an academic law library. It is safe to say that she was successful in her quest. After 18 interviews with a wide range of top-notch schools throughout the country, Sarah eventually decided to accept Touro Law Center’s offer to work at their new state-of-the-art law library. Sarah’s success at landing a great job even before graduating demonstrates the potential of a KU law degree combined with the MLIM. Congratulations Sarah!
THREE GREAT NEW ADDITIONS TO THE WHEAT LAW LIBRARY

Allison Reeve, who will graduate from KU in May with Bachelor of Arts degrees in Spanish and Anthropology, was recently hired by the Wheat Law Library as a Library Assistant. You may recognize her because she was a student worker at the circulation desk for the past three years. Allison plans to pursue a Master’s Degree in Library and Information Science upon graduation from KU and has already proven to be an invaluable addition to the Wheat Law Library Staff. She is actively involved with a wide range of activities throughout the library, including technical services, cataloging, and circulation.

Our new Technology Support Technician, Charles Rigdon, received his B.S. in Information Sciences and Technology from Pennsylvania State University in May of 2004. Upon graduation he was hired by Universal Printing Company as an Information Technology Specialist. On May 24, 2005 he married a Missouri girl and thus moved to Missouri in July of 2005 to be closer to her family. Charles began his employment with KU Law and the Wheat Law Library on the first day of classes, August 27, 2005. His technical knowledge and skills benefit us greatly, and his office is on the second floor of the library in Room 200F.

Last but not least, the library recently hired Lauren Vanwaardhuizen as a Library Assistant. Lauren received two B.S. degrees from Iowa State University in May of 2001 (Marketing & Transportation, Logistics and International Business). She received her M.A. in L.I.S. in December of 2004 and worked at the Pella Public Library before joining us at KU Law. Lauren is an asset to the library not only because of her substantial skills and experience, but also because her degree in Library and Information Science brings the total number of librarians with library degrees to six (with two more on the way).

We hope that you will take the time to meet and welcome our new staff members in continuation of the tradition of collegiality that makes KU Law such a great place to be!

KANSAS OPEN RECORDS ACT PROJECT UPDATE

The Kansas Open Records Act (K.O.R.A.) project is completing the initial research phase of identifying and gathering priority statutes. The project, headed by Law Professor Mike Kautsch, is a National Freedom of Information Coalition grant program designed to trace the evolution of exceptions to the K.O.R.A. through legislative history, statutory provisions, and case-law interpretations. Instructional & Research Services Attorney Carolyn Clark has served as the Wheat Law Library’s research liaison for the project and has been actively involved in collecting the necessary information. Ultimately, the project seeks to create a database of information relevant to the K.O.R.A. that will be accessible to the general public.

CONFERENCES, PRESENTATIONS TAKE LIBRARY STAFF AROUND THE GLOBE

The Wheat Law Library staff is committed to providing KU Law with world-class legal information services. To this end, many staff members have traveled extensively to attend conferences and make presentations. Some of the highlights are listed below.

A record-setting seven-member strong Wheat Law Library entourage made the trip to San Antonio, TX this July to attend the annual conference of the American Association of Law Librarians. The KU delegation was further augmented by the attendance of recent KU Law grad and former Wheat Law Library reference staff member Sarah Shik, who was job-hunting in anticipation of graduating from the MLIM program this semester (see story on page 1).

Director Joyce McCray Pearson recently attended the annual conference of the International Association of Law Librarians in Italy. Associate Director Joseph Custer has traveled every (continued on Page 4)
TEN TIPS FOR BETTER LEGAL RESEARCH…

Whether you are a 1L working on Lawyering assignments or a seasoned veteran researching your writing requirement project, these tips can improve your research process:

10) Use the Index. It’s that little book at the end of a set of resources. Fumbling your way through without using the index is the first step toward frustration.

9) Ask yourself: is this resource organized chronologically or by subject? Almost all legal research resources are organized either chronologically or by subject. Realizing this allows you to better understand the resources you are using.

8) Use the Research Subject Guides located across from the Circulation Desk (and available on the library website). These guides were created to give you a shortcut to finding relevant resources. Take advantage!

7) Use Meta-Sites when searching on the Internet. Obviously, this applies only to those who have completed Lawyering I! Meta-Sites, such as the Wheat Law Library website (http://www.ku.edu/cgiwrap/kulaw/libraryindex.php) and Washlaw (www.washlaw.edu), save valuable time because all of the links you need are there on one page.

6) Use Secondary Sources. Nine times out of ten, somebody struggling with primary resources could benefit immensely from taking a step back and looking at the big picture with a good secondary source.

5) Browse the stacks. If you find a resource that you like, take a look at the call number. If you go to the corresponding section in the stacks you are likely to find several more excellent resources. Keyword searching the online catalog simply cannot replicate this.

4) When you don’t know where to start, Google. This is heresy to old-school researchers, but Internet search engines can save a lot of research time when used properly. “Properly,” in this context, means do not rely upon them to the exclusion of all other resources!

3) Utilize official government resources. Courts, legislatures, and agencies are continuously expanding their online offerings. When dealing with a government entity, looking them up on the web is a no-brainer.

2) Always start early. Quality legal research always takes longer than originally planned. If you doubt this, take a look around the library the week before the Open Memo is due—it is not a pretty sight.

1) Ask a Librarian. That is what we are here for!

BLUEBOOK RELAYS A SMASHING SUCCESS ONCE AGAIN

Thanks go to everyone who participated in the Barber Emerson Bluebook Relays on Friday, October 28. The Relays are a great tradition and just one of the reasons that KU Law is such a great place to be. Our own Jeff Montgomery, Serials Manager, organizes the event every year and helps to arrange the prizes through Barber Emerson, a local Lawrence law firm. Thanks for all of your hard work, Jeff!
As the largest and oldest law library in the state of Kansas, the Wheat Law Library is an integral part of The University of Kansas School of Law. It serves the law school and university community in legal and interdisciplinary scholarly pursuits and provides attorneys, judges, and the general public with access to legal information. Key components of this mission include collecting and preserving Kansas, national, and international legal documents; teaching legal information literacy; and serving as a legal information gateway by providing access to sources beyond the scope of the physical collection.

where from Chicago to Hong Kong to present research papers and attend conferences. He also presented a paper, “American Libraries and Intellectual Freedom: Selected Issues and the Present Day Patriot Act” at an Oxford Round Table at England’s University of Oxford in August.

Head of Public & Faculty Services Robert Mead recently attended the annual meeting of the Mid-American Association of Law Librarians in North Dakota. He has also presented at several CLE seminars.

Library conferences and presentations aren’t the only things we have been up to. Circulation Manager Su Johnson recently traveled to Washington D.C. as part of the Motet Singers ensemble. The group represented the state of Kansas during the Kansas State Day service at the National Cathedral on August 21, 2005.

Carolyn Clark and Chris Steadham were co-presenters at a Continuing Legal Education seminar in Overland Park on October 24. The seminar was entitled, “Find It Fast and Free on the ‘Net: Advanced Internet Strategies for the Kansas Legal Professional.”

She didn’t have to travel for it, but Marsha Tiemann was recently promoted to Cataloging Manager. Congratulations Marsha!

ANNUAL FRIENDS OF THE WHEAT LAW LIBRARY MEETING SCHEDULED FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 6, 2006

The Wheat Law Library honors National Library Week every year by holding the annual meeting of the Friends of the Wheat Law Library. This year our guest of honor will be Robert Loyd, 1962 KU Law alum. Mr. Loyd and his fellow L’62 classmates recently purchased two new display cases for the library, and we hope to show our appreciation for his generosity. The meeting will be Thursday, April 6, 2006 at 12:30 in the Rice Room. More information will be forthcoming, so for now just be sure to clear your calendar and plan on attending this wonderful tradition of the Wheat Law Library. Remember, many of the opportunities we enjoy at KU Law would not be possible without the generosity of alumni such as Mr. Loyd and the Class of ’62!
